with blancke-ſpace for different names (ſure more) & theſe are of the ſecond edition; he wil print them out of doubt, for he cares not what he puts into the preſſe, when he would put vs two; I had rather be a Gianteſſe & lye vnder Mount Pelion. Well; I will finde you twentie laſcivious Turtles ere one chaſte man.

Miſ. Ford. Why this is the very ſame; the very hand, the very words, what doth he thinke of vs?

Miſ. Page. Nay I know not; it makes me almoſt readie to wrangle with mine owne honeſty; Ile entertaine my ſelfe like one that I am not acquainted withall, for ſure vnleſſe hee know ſome ſtraine in mee, that I know not my ſelfe, hee would neuer haue boorded me in this furie.

Miſ. Ford. Boording, call you it? Ile be ſure to keepe him aboue decke.

Miſ. Page. So will I, if hee come vnder my hatches, *I*le neuer to Sea againe. Let's be reueng'd on him; let's appoint him a meeting, giue him a ſhow of comfort in his Suite, and lead him on with a fine baited delay, till hee hath pawn'd his horſes to mine Hoſt of the Garter.

Miſ. Ford Nay, I will conſent to act any villany againſt him, that may not ſully the charineſſe of our honeſty; oh that my husband ſaw this Letter; it would giue eternall food to his iealouſie.

Miſ. Page. Why looke where he comes; and my good man too; hee's as farre from iealouſie, as I am from giuing him cauſe, and that (I hope) is an vnmeaſurable diſtance.

Miſ. Ford. You are the happier woman.

Miſ. Page. Let's conſult together againſt this greaſie Knight; Come hither.

Ford. Well, I hope, it be not ſo.

Piſt. Hope is a curtall-dog in ſome affaires;
Sir Iohn affects thy wife.

Ford. Why ſir, my wife is not young.

Piſt. He wooes both high and low, both rich and poore, both young and old, one with another (Ford) he loues

Gally-mawfry (Ford) perpend.

Ford. Loue my wife?

Piſtoll. With liuer, burning hot: preuent Or goe thou like Sir Acteon he, with Ring-wood at thy heeles: O, odious is the Ford. What name Sir?

Piſt. The horne I ſay: Farewell.
Take heed, haue open eye, for theeues doe f
Take heed, ere ſommer comes, or Cuckoo-b Away ſir Corporall Nim.
Beleeue it (Page) he ſpeakes ſence.

Ford. I will be patient; I will finde out th

Nim. And this is true; I like not the hum haue wronged mee in ſome humors; I ſhou
the humour'd Letter to her, but I haue it ſhall bite vpon my neceſſitie, he loues your the ſhort and the long: My name is Corpora and I auouch; 'tis true: my name is Nim, an your wife, adieu, I loue not the humour of b adieu.

Page. The humour of it (quoth'a?) heere's Engliſh out of his wits.

Ford. I will ſeeke out Falſtaffe.

Page. I neuer heard ſuch a drawling-affec

Ford. If I doe finde it: well.

Page. I will not beleeue ſuch a Cataian, th o'th' Towne commended him for a true ma

Ford. 'Twas a good ſenſible fellow, well.

Page. How now Meg?

Miſ. Page. Whither goe you (George?) h

Miſ. Ford. How now (ſweet Frank) w lancholy?

Ford. I melancholy? I am not melancho
Get you home, goe.

Miſ. Ford. Faith, thou haſt ſome croch
Now, will you goe, Miſtris Page?

Miſ. Page. Haue with you, you'll come to Looke who comes yonder; ſhee ſhall bee